Rabies Clinic Planned For June 8-10

R. L. Cooper, Administrative Assistant of the Calloway County Health Department announced today that rabies clinics are scheduled in various sections of the county.

These clinics are sponsored by the Calloway County Health Department. The local veterinarians will be in charge of all the clinics. The fee will be $1.50 per animal.

Tractor-Trailer & Truck Involved In Accident Yesterday

Trooper Charles Stephenson investigated an accident yesterday at 9:50 a.m. on U.S. Highway 641 three-tenths of a mile south of Murray.

Involved in the accident were Freddie Rye McIlwain, of Parons, Tenn., age 49, driving his own 1959 International tractor-trailer, and Charles Allen Boyd, 618 South 11th Street, Paducah, age 27, driving a 1965 Ford 1 1/2 ton truck for the Service Soft Water Conditioning Company of Paducah.

Stephenson said McIlwain was following Boyd when Boyd started to make a left turn. At the same time McIlwain started to pass Boyd and the right front of the tractor-trailer hit the left side of the Ford truck. McIlwain cut to the left to try to avoid the collision, Stephenson said. Both trucks went into the driveway before they were able to stop, but neither of them turned over nor were the drivers hurt, according to the state trooper.

Two minor accidents on gravel roads were reported over the weekend by Trooper Stephenson who said no one was hurt and only minor damage was incurred.

Excellent Pictures Are Sent Back By Surveyor Spacecraft

By KEARNEY BOWWELL
PASADENA, Calif. 479 — The triumphant Surveyor spacecraft, carrying an American flag to the moon, sent back to earth today 144 "excellent" pictures showing what appeared to be boulders, rocks and pebbles covered with possibly an inch of dust on the lunar surface. "I would say that the most interesting thing is that there are so many rocks projecting from the surface," said project scientist Dr. L. Jaffe.

He said that using data returned by Surveyor in America's first-try soft-landing and that received in February by Russia's Luna 9 spacecraft "can draw a conclusion that rubble is fairly common over a large area of the moon."

"It is clear that the lunar surface is not solid hard rock . . . The area where surveyor landed would support the weight of man," Jaffe said.

The 144 glossy prints received by the jet-propulsion laboratory before the moon dropped below the horizon were described as "high quality."

The pictures showed no life or movement and a scientist said the rocks seen "probably were black or gray like any desert rocks."

The spider-like vehicle completed its remarkably accurate 63-hour voyage at 11:17:37 p.m. PDT Wednesday 2:17:37 a.m. EDT Thursday, touching down in the Sea of Storms on the west side of the moon just below its equator.

The spacecraft had traveled 247,538 miles.

It had returned 144 "high quality" pictures which jet-propulsion laboratory scientists said indicate the moon's surface is hard.

Surveyor's remarkable pinpoint success was regarded as a major step by the United States in its race with the Soviet Union to place a manned space ship on the moon.

Russia's Luna 9, after five failures, landed in the same Sea of Storms last Feb. 3. At that time U.S. officials denied the Russian claim that it put the Soviets in the lead in that race.

In England, astronomer Sir Fred Hoyle said the Soviet success was "a major step by the United States in its race with the Soviet Union to place a manned space ship on the moon."

Manager Gene Mauch Rushes Allen Back Into Lineup At Left Field, Not Regular Spot; Wine Gets Extra Duties

By JOE GERGEN

UPI Sports Writer

Philadelphia Manager Gene Mauch rushed Allen back into the starting lineup last week after the Phillies suffered through a scoring drought but instead of returning him to his regular third base position he shifted him to left field.

The reason was obvious as soon as Allen fielded a ball. The right shoulder, which he had partly dislocated on April 29, had not healed sufficiently for him to raise his throwing arm. So shortstop Bobby Wine was assigned the added duties of relaying Allen's underhanded lob into the infield.

But while the injury prevented a fielding problem for the 24-year-old star, no such difficulty has been observed at the plate where the muscular Allen picked up right up where he had left off a month before.

Back in Groove

Allen has been swinging at a .300 clip since his return on May 27 and has snapped the Phillies out of a slump and projected the club back into the thick of the National League pennant race. He collected three hits, including a classic three-run homer, in Wednesday night's 4-2 victory over the Cubs which raised the Philadelphia log to 6-2 since Allen rejoined the club.

The Dodgers Sandy Koufax picked up his ninth victory in 10 decisions by shutting out St. Louis 1-0. San Francisco overpowered Atlanta 4-3. Houston blanked Cincinnati 2-0 and Pittsburgh edged New York 3-1 in other NL action.

Kansas City surprised first-place Cleveland 8-3 in American League play. Detroit drubbed Minnesota 9-4. Baltimore bested California 9-7 in 10 innings. Chicago clipped New York 6-2 and Boston and Washington split a doubleheader, the Senators taking the opener 5-3 and losing the nightcap 5-0.

Allen, who suffered the injury while sliding into second base against the Cubs, raised his average to .338 and his slugging percentage to .549 with his 447-foot homer off loser Bob Hendley in the second game of the twilight. He also singled home a run in that game and doubled and scored a run in the opener which the Phillies won on Tony Taylor's run-scoring single in the eighth.

Allen Makes Difference

Philadelphia now has won 13 and lost seven this season with Allen in the lineup and lost 13 of 24 without him.

Koufax, posting his third shutout, allowed seven hits and struck out nine in outdueling St. Louis southpaw Al Jackson. The little Cardinal left-hander had limited the Dodgers to two hits until the seventh when Willie Davis tripled and scored on Bob Toian's poor relay throw for the only run of the game.

Willie Mays, Willie McCovey and Jim Davenport bombarded Atlanta starter Ken Johnson with home runs and Ron Herbel, with ninth-inning relief help from three pitchers, notched his first victory of the year. Hank Aaron, the major league home run leader hit his 17th for the Braves.

Dave Giusti and Claude Raymond combined to pitch a five-hitter as Houston handed Cincinnati right-hander Jim Maloney his first loss of the season in six decisions. Giusti pitched seven innings to gain his sixth win and Raymond hurled his last over the final two frames. Jim Wynn singled across one run in the first and Rusty Staub homered in the seventh.

Pittsburgh reliever Al McLean struck out Dick Stuart with the bases loaded and two out in the ninth to preserve Don Cardwell's first victory of the campaign. Stuart earlier had produced the only New York run with his third homer in the fifth. Masty Alou collected two hits for the Pirates, drove in one run and scored another.

four-volume biography of General Marshall sponsored by the Library in Lexington. The first volume, entitled "George C. Marshall: Education of a General 1880-1939," was published in 1963. The next in the series, being published by Viking, is scheduled for publication this fall. It will cover the wartime Chief of Staff's career until the middle of World War II.

During World War II, Dr. Pogue was a combat historian with the First U.S. Army in Europe, holding campaign stars from many of the campaigns including the arrowhead for Omaha Beach Landing. He received the Bronze Star and Croix de Guerre for front-line interviewing.

After the war he prepared a brief history of Supreme Headquarters, Allied Expeditionary Force in Europe, and then wrote the "Supreme Command," published by the Government Printing Office in 1954 — the official Department of Army history of General Eisenhower's command in Northwest Europe. As a member of the Operations Research Office, Johns Hopkins University, under contract with the Department of the Army, he worked at Hq. U.S. Army Europe, Heidelberg, Germany, 1945-54.

In 1964, Dr. Pogue co-authored "The Meaning of Yalta." He was a contributor to "Command Decisions," 1959, and "Total War and Cold War," 1962. Since 1965, he has been director of the George C. Marshall Research Center in Arlington, Va. He has directed a staff which has been compiling and indexing material for the files of the Marshall Research Library in Lexington, Va.

The other five members of the advisory board of the John Hopkins project are:

Dr. Milton S. Eisenhower, president of the John Hopkins University and former Special Ambassador to the President of the United States on Latin American Affairs;

Dr. Arthur S. Link, professor of history at Princeton University and director of the projected forty-volume Woodrow Wilson papers;

Dr. Eiting E. Morrison, Sloan Fellow Professor of Industrial Management at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and editor of the eight-volume "Letters of Theodore Roosevelt";

Dr. Allan Nevins, DeWitt Clinton Professor Emeritus of American History at Columbia University;

In a joint statement, Mr. Garland and Dr. Chandler praised the exceptionally high caliber of the Eisenhower paper's advisory board that includes historians who have written distinguished books in the field of recent American history as well as advisory to Dwight D. Eisenhower during his eight years as President of the United States.

"The historians on this board have served in editorial posts for the collection and publication of some of the most important American documents of this century, including the papers of Presidents Woodrow Wilson, Theodore Roosevelt, and General George C. Marshall," according to Mr. Garland and Dr. Chandler.

The Eisenhower papers is the major project now in progress at The John Hopkins Center for the Study of Recent American History. The first two volumes, scheduled for completion in early 1968, will record General Eisenhower's role in the planning and fighting of World War II.

Although the collection will include material from every period of General Eisenhower's life, the bulk of the concentrates on the two decades between 1941 and 1961.

During the first half of that period, Eisenhower directed the War Plans Office, served as commanding general of the combined forces

Officers Reserve. The plane left Memphis at nine a.m. Tuesday and was scheduled to arrive in Phoenix at one p.m., but the plane encountered bad storms in Oklahoma and it was 2:15 p.m. before the plane was able to land.

The boy's mother also accompanied him on the plane and said that Johnny got very sick during the storm. She said it was hard for them to even hold their balance and with having to keep Johnny on the bed it was a terrific struggle. The doctor said that it was one of the worst storms he had ever been in during his years of flying.

Johnny was suffering from the effects of the storm and did not recognize his father when he arrived, but members of the family said he is now resting well.

Doctors at the Baptist Hospital said they were deeply interested in his condition. The brain specialist at the hospital has told the family that he thought Johnny would be a normal child, but it will probably be a year or longer for the recovery.

The address for those who would like to write him letters or send him cards is Johnny Seavers, St. Joseph's Hospital, Third Avenue and Thomas Road, Room 262, Phoenix, Arizona.

Mrs. Joe Seavers (Mary Ann) has returned to her home at Lynn Grove. She said the family was so thankful for the National Guard for taking Johnny to Phoenix.

Johnny had been here with his uncle and aunt since last Christmas and was a student at Lynn Grove School at the time of the accident.

Johnny is the oldest of the Seavers children. His two youngest brothers, Matthew and David, have been with their father's sister about one hundred miles from Phoenix since the accident. The other two boys, Eric and Mark, who are in school, have been with their father in Phoenix.

In the North African campaign, supreme commander of the Allied forces in Europe, Chief of Staff, and finally, head of the NATO forces.

The papers from the eight presidential years will cover the Eisenhower Administration's activity during the Korean War, the Soviet threat to Iran, revolutions in East Germany and Hungary, the Suez invasion, an economic recession in 1968, the U-2 incident, and the rise of Castro-Communism in Cuba.

Dr. Pogue was born in Kentucky and received his M.A. in 1961 from Murray State College. The next year he received his M.A. from the University of Kentucky and later his Ph.D. from Clark University in Worcester, Massachusetts. He later studied International Relations and Diplomacy at the University of Paris.

Dr. Pogue has taught at Western Kentucky College, George Washington University, and Murray State University. At Murray State University he was Professor of History, 1953-62 and 1964-66. His wife is the former Christine Brown of Fulton, Kentucky.

hard Lovell hailed the Surveyor landing as "a remarkable achievement."

Lovell, one of the world's leading space authorities, said, "It is a splendid and remarkable achievement, particularly in view of the fact that it was achieved on the first attempt."

The initial photo showed one of Surveyor's legs on its crumpled pod. The leg was not buried in the moon's surface and the leg did not appear to be covered by dust.

Shows Small Rocks

Ten of the first 13 photographs were a series taken when the camera scanned the lunar landscape. The pictures, taken three degrees apart between the No. 2 and No. 3 pods, showed what appeared to be small rocks or mounds resembling freshly plowed ground. The ground seemed pitted.

Shortly before 3 a.m., PDT 6 a.m., EDT, JPL scientists deployed Surveyor's high-grain antenna, which switched the television camera to a much higher quality 600-line scan.

The Surveyor was within the receiving range of JPL's Goldstone tracking station in California's Mojave Desert until 4:20 a.m., PDT 7:20 a.m., EDT.

At that time a tracking station in Canberra, Australia was to take over monitoring of all systems, including reception of television pictures.

Surveyor's impact on the moon was greeted with a jubilant outburst by the tense JPL scientists and newsmen, who clapped and shouted when the loudspeaker echoed, "It's down and functioning."

Surveyor had begun its delicate terminal maneuvering at 10:52 p.m., PDT Wednesday when it closed to about 2,000 miles from the lunar surface.

A radio command from earth fired small gas jets which turned the spacecraft around so that its main retrothrusters faced the moon.

Applies "Brakes"

At 11:10 p.m., PDT the spacecraft began applying its rocket brakes slowing the vehicle from 5,900 miles per hour to 200 m.p.h. A television camera aboard the Surveyor took pictures of the surface during the final descent.

The slowing process began when the probe had moved to within 500 miles of the moon. At that point its attitude marking radar turned on and at 80 miles the radar triggered three small engines and ignited the 10,000-pound thrust main rocket.

At 545 miles altitude the spent retrothrusters were jettisoned, cutting Surveyor's weight from 2,194 pounds to 620 pounds for landing.

Three liquid-fueled Vernier engines then took over the task of WATTS WITNESS—Bus driver Jonathan Preston testified at a coroner's inquest in Los Angeles that the car in which Leonard Deadwyler, 25, was shot fatally did move forward after it was stopped by policeman Jerold M. Bova, who claims that a noise caused his gun to discharge, killing Deadwyler. The victim was driving his pregnant wife, who thought she was about to have her baby, to a hospital and was halted by Bova for speeding.

HIS DEFENSE—Los Angeles policeman Jerold M. Bova, 23, testified at a coroner's inquest that slain Leonard Deadwyler's car lurched, causing his service revolver to discharge accidentally when Bova was stopping him for speeding. The bullet killed Deadwyler, a Negro, stirring more racial unrest.

Miss Edna Williams, bride-elect of Glen Jones, was the honoree at a household shower given recently at the home of Mrs. O. Hatcher at seven-thirty o'clock in the evening.

A color scheme of blue and white was used.

The hostess, Mrs. Hatcher and Mrs. Olive Hutchins, presented a corsage of white carnations to Miss Williams who was attired in a pink pleated dress with black accessories.

The honoree opened her gifts which had been placed on a table of white edged with silver. Floral arrangements were blue and white carnations with blue candles.

Punch, mince, and individual cakes decorated with a blue bell were served to the guests.

Forty-four persons were present or sent gifts.

Flyer Determined to Keep His Wings

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: After my husband had a close call, he promised me he would quit flying for a hobby, but he sneaks off and flies anyway. He's even lied to our insurance man about it. I know he still flies because when the weather is bad and he can't get home, he has to call me.

I love him, but I've even threatened to leave him. We have four children and I don't want a divorce, but I can't take worrying about him all the time. What is your advice?

FLYING WIFE
DEAR WIFE: If you can't persuade your husband to quit flying and you don't want a divorce, your remaining alternative is to learn to live with it. Apparently your man is determined to have wings, and from your description of him, he's not likely to spread any.

DEAR ABBY: I have a sister-in-law who's smart, bookish, and doesn't let anybody forget it for a minute. She's a Stanford graduate. Big deal! My complaint: Whenever there is a family gathering, she suggests word games like "Twenty Questions" or "Charades," or something where she can show off how smart she is.

We are a fairly intelligent bunch, but nobody except this one sister-in-law is interested in playing these brain games, which are more like contests. She's the bossy type and talks everyone into it every time we get together. How can we get out of playing these games without looking like poor sports?

HATES THOSE GAMES
DEAR ABBY: Speak for yourself. If you don't want to participate in "brain games," say so. And by the way, the rest of the bunch can't be as "intelligent" as you say they are, if they wouldn't permit themselves to be maneuvered into playing games in which they have no interest. Not completely, anyway.

DEAR ABBY: This is to further support your comforting statement that the gestation period of a child can be well over 10 months.

There was a case in England early in the century in which the husband, an army officer stationed in India, had sued on the ground that the child could not possibly have been his; the gestation period having been nearly 11 months.

The case went to the house of lords, which is the equivalent of our Supreme court, and the LADY finally won. The decision was: "While it is highly unusual, it is NOT impossible to carry a child for nearly 11 months."

CONFIDENTIAL TO J. G. IN ABILENE: Here's a good rule to follow: If you don't know a person well enough to borrow money from him, don't lend him any.

Problems? Write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply, include a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Questions-Answers

This column of questions and answers on federal tax matters is provided by the local office of the U. S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.

A. — In most cases, your reply should be sent to the service center. If the letter does not indicate where the information should be sent then look at the top of the notice. Send your reply to the office listed on the letterhead or mailhead. If a return envelope was sent too, it should be used for your reply.

Q. — I've been asked to send some tax records in to back up a deduction I claimed on last year's return. Can I bring them in, rather than mail them?

A. — Yes, you may. However, most taxpayers prefer the convenience of handling the matter by mail instead of in person. To guard against loss of your records, photographs or other copies can be submitted so that originals are not sent through the mail.

Q. — Who has to pay self-employment tax?

A. — This tax applies mainly to those who work for themselves rather than for an employer. Any one engaged in a trade, business or profession for himself is liable.

Exceptions to this are public officials, clergymen and Christian Science practitioners, non-resident aliens, and members of certain religious sects opposed to the acceptance of any private or public insurance (including Social Security benefits). They do not have to pay this tax. Clergymen and Christian Science practitioners may elect, however, to pay the tax and be covered by Social Security.

Q. — How much do you take when a person hits a bag payoff at the race track?

A. — In most cases, the government does not actually withhold tax when the tickets are cashed at the track. What happens is that the track obtains the identification of the winner, including Social Security or tax account number, before payment is made.

The information on track winnings is then handled like dividend and interest payments. The payer in this case the race track, files an information return with IRS showing the amount paid and the name and social security number of the taxpayer. This information can then be compared with what the taxpayer reports on his return.

The winner often is required to file a declaration of estimated tax since the winnings are not subject to tax withholding. Only when the winner is a non-resident alien is the track required to withhold tax on the winnings.

Q. — I'm paying Social Security tax on cash tips I receive. Is my boss matching this as he does on my regular salary?

A. — No. The law provides only for employee contributions to Social Security on tip income. Your employer is not the source of your tip income; for that reason he is not required to pay Social Security tax on tips.

Veterans NEWS

Q. — Will VA guarantee a business loan under the new GI Bill?

A. — No. Business loans are not authorized. GI loans may be made for the purchase of homes, farms, farm supplies or equipment, or to obtain farm working capital; also to make alterations, repairs or improvements in homes already owned and occupied; or, to refinance delinquent indebtedness on the property.

Q. — Can the so-called "six-month enlistees" take advantage of the educational provisions of the new GI Bill?

A. — No. Six month enlistees, national guard reservists and those who go on active duty for training purposes only are not eligible for the benefits of the new GI Bill.

Q. — In 1918 I suffered TB and was sent to a Naval Hospital from which I was discharged a year later with a 100 per cent temporary total service-connected disability. In 1942 I was told that my condition was inactive. I would like to know why there is a difference in service-connected disabilities?

A. — The difference in service-connected disabilities is the severity of each disability. Each case is decided on the degree the veteran is disabled. Just about any ailment or disability can be service-connected if the veteran can prove that the illness or disability occurred during military service.
